2003 Science Buddies Program Needs Your Help

Want to 'give back to society' in a meaningful way without costing you a penny? Volunteer for the Science Buddies program and become an online Advisor and role model for science students. Find out more at a brown bag presentation on September 16 at noon in the Sierra Room (Bldg. 40).

Get the Scoop on Office XP

Would you like to know more about the Microsoft Office XP System? Office XP includes programs such as Word, Excel, Outlook, PowerPoint, FrontPage and Access. SCS is hosting an Office XP demo on Thursday, September 18, from noon to 1 p.m. in the 3rd floor Conference Rooms of Bldg. 50. There is no registration or fee.

Accelerators and Dinosaurs

"Sixty-five million years ago, dinosaurs ruled Earth, and then astrophysics killed them... Since World War II, accelerators have ruled the world of big science, with no less success than the dinosaurs." This is the opening of an interesting article by Michael Turner in Physics Today. Turner says that while astrophysics might appear to have made accelerators less relevant, in fact astrophysics has made accelerators more important than ever.

40th Anniversary Books Available

If you didn't already receive a copy of the 40th Anniversary books that were produced for last year's celebration, or if you would like to have an additional copy, there are some remaining that we can now distribute. Just stop by the Communications Group offices (Bldg. 40, room G-106) anytime during working hours.
